THROW AWAY THE INHERENT MODESTY OF OUR GREAT FORE-FATHERS, RALLY ONCE MORE TO THE FLAG AND BUGLE CALL OF BATTLE, AND STAMP OUT THIS HORRIFYING IMPEACHMENT OF RIGHTS.

THIS WEEK'S NEWS.

President Johnson of the United States is at present in Australia, on his tour of the east prior to going on to the seven nation conference in Manila, in the Phillipine Islands. He has had talks with the Australian Prime minister in Canberra, and both have agreed that they will maintain the present military effort in Vietnam until a satisfactory settlement is negotiated. He said the fighting will only end when the great issues at stake have been secured. The first stop on his tour was in Honolulu, where he said he still hopes for a peaceful reconciliation with China, and they would try to keep alive the hope of a freer flow of ideas between China and the United States. The United States role in Asia is only to help; Asia would provide its own leadership, and the United States would co-operate with them. He also stopped in New Zealand on his way to Australia, to meet the Prime Minister, Mr. Holyoak. On his Australian visit, during a drive through Melbourne, two balloons filled with paint were thrown at his car; the car was splattered with paint, but no-one was hurt.

The South Vietnamese Prime Minister has expressed hope that the Manila conference will result in increased aid for his country. He told a news conference in Saigon that it would be a good opportunity to inform the world about South Vietnam's development programme. He also announced that during his absence in Manila, one of the seven civilian Cabinet Ministers who resigned yesterday, the former Deputy Premier, would act as Head of the government. It is reported that five other ministers have agreed to remain in office until after the conference. The seventh is said to have refused.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman says that nearly 140 Vietcong have been killed in heavy fighting in the Mekong delta. American helicopters supported the South Vietnamese troops, and three of them were shot down. American bombers have again attacked river and coastal traffic in North Vietnam. On Thursday, a grenade was thrown in Saigon, injuring several people; and nine people, four of them children, were killed when a terrorist mine exploded in the crowded marketplace of a town to the south-west of Saigon. Nearly fifty people were seriously injured.

RHODESIA. Earlier in the week, the Smith regime floated a loan of £4½ million, which was quickly subscribed in full in spite of a warning issued by the British Treasury. The regime has now raised almost £20 million through local loans since it seized independence a year ago.

Sir Morris James is due in London today on his return from Salisbury with Mr. Smith's interim reply to the British Government's proposals for Rhodesia. Mr. Smith's statement yesterday, that any British approach to the United Nations would amount to rejecting Rhodesia from the Commonwealth, and they might then become a republic, appears to have introduced a new element into the situation. In a broadcast from Salisbury, Mr. Smith said that the talks with Britain were an attempt to get the British to recognise his regime.

The United Nations Trusteeship Committee has temporarily adjourned its discussion on the Rhodesian issue after hearing more demands for mandatory sanctions, this time from Kenya and Uganda. Commonwealth speakers appear less decided now about whether sanctions should be selective, as stated after the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference, or token. Impatience and misgivings over British action on Rhodesia are being increasingly voiced.

LEBANON. Police are guarding banks in Beirut following the Lebanese government's order closing all banks in the country for three days. Bystanders gathered outside some banks, but no incidents were reported. The country-wide closures followed the decision of the Intra bank to suspend operations after a run on cash withdrawals. A cabinet statement said that the Lebanese Central Bank has been told to provide enough cash for the banks, and the Intra bank, which has promised to meet all its commitments in full has asked for similar treatment. The cabinet statement declared that the country's financial position is sound.

INDONESIA. The trial of Dr. Subandreo, the former foreign minister, ended in Djakarta on Wednesday, and the verdict is expected to be announced next Tuesday. He was accused of subversion and the misuse of State funds. In his defence speech, Dr. Subandreo said that he had honestly believed that Britain and the United States were plotting to invade Indonesia, and therefore he thought it only reasonable to establish good relations with Russia and China. But, he said, this did not mean following a Communist policy. He was not a communist, and was not involved in the attempted coup last year. The prosecution has rejected this statement, and has demanded the death penalty. In Djakarta it is felt that Dr. Subandreo is a doomed man.

LAOS In a clash between Army and Air Force leaders, Air Force planes bombed and strafed the airport and military camp at the capital Vientian today. The commanding officer of the air force is said to have ordered the attacks, in which about twenty people have been killed or injured, after a number of army leaders were arrested near his headquarters in south Laos. The army commander has ordered a dusk-to-dawn curfew in Vientian. The Prime Minister of Laos has cut short his visit to Paris, and is flying home at once.

DELHI. President Nasser of Egypt and President Tito of Yugoslavia are at present in Delhi for talks with the Indian Premier, Mrs. Gandhi. Mrs. Gandhi says that the war in Vietnam must end before it engulfs the whole of the world, and also that the developing nations must make a tremendous effort to become self-reliant. President Nasser said that pressures going almost as far as economic and psychological war were being put on developing countries by powers seeking to dominate them, and President Tito said that such pressures had caused disintegration in Africa.

MOSCOW. Communist leaders from various countries have been having talks in Moscow. The only ruling communists not represented are those of Albania, Yugoslavia, North Vietnam, North Korea, and China. After the talks they visited the Soviet Scientific Centre at Novosibirsk, in Siberia. Later they witnessed the launching of a new unmanned earth satellite. At the talks they discussed the possibility of greater communist unity, in the face of the Vietnam war, and added that American action in Vietnam could soon be checked if all communist countries were united without exception. The newspaper Pravda has accused China of helping imperialism by refusing to join the other countries in support in North Vietnam.

It was announced today that the Russians have set off over 10,000 tons of chemical explosive to create a dam in the Tianshan mountains in Central Asia.

MALAYSIA. The First Secretary in the British High Commission in Kuching is to be transferred elsewhere. Last month a member of the Malaysian parliament alleged that the Secretary, Mr. Spendlove, had interfered in Sarawa's domestic affairs. A statement by the British High Commissioner in Kuala Lumpur today says that no evidence has been produced to support the allegations, and the Commonwealth Secretary is satisfied that they are without foundation. Mr. Spendlove is being transferred as he is now unable to carry out his proper function in Kuching.

Malaysia has asked Thailand and the Phillipines to consider pooling their industries and markets. The suggestion was made at the opening of the conference in Kuala Lumpur of the Association of South East Asia, which consists of Malaysia, Thailand and the Phillipines. The head of the Phillipines delegation said he would support any proposal for strengthening economic ties in the group.

Another 300 British combat troops have left the Borneo territories of Malaysia and are now on their way home. Some British and Gurkha units have yet to be recalled, as have some headquarters staff. Of the original 11,000 Commonwealth troops in East Malaysia, 9,000 will be out by the end of October, and all of them by early next year, leaving Malaysian troops responsible for the area.

SOUTH AFRICA. The trial has ended in Cape Town of the man accused of the assassination of the former Prime Minister Dr. Verwoerd. The man, 48 year old Parliamentary messenger Dimitrio Sapendas, has been declared insane, and is to be detained indefinitely. The judge gave this decision after hearing evidence by two witnesses for the prosecution, who agreed with defence witnesses that Sapendas was mentally unfit to stand trial. Earlier a doctor had told the court that Sapendas believed that he had a demon tapeworm inside him, which made him kill the Prime Minister.

PERU. About 100 people are reported to have been killed and many others injured in an earthquake in Central Peru. In Lima, shattered buildings crashed into streets jammed with people trying to escape. Tidal waves caused by the earthquake have washed away the homes of many families living on the coast to the north of Lima.

ADEN. Customs officials in Aden have seized another five crates of rifles which arrived aboard a Yugoslavian ship. This is the second batch delivered by Yugoslavian ships to be confiscated this month, bringing the total to about 1,600 rifles. They are German Mausers, reconditioned in Czechoslovakia, and were in crates labelled 'Machine Parts' and addressed to a fictional address. ~~##~~

NEW YORK. Two firemen have died in a big fire in New York, and ten others are reported missing. The men were killed when the wall of a burning building collapsed. The fire began in a basement in Manhattan, and swept through three commercial buildings. Altogether, 200 firemen have been fighting the blaze.

CAPE KENNEDY Two more telecommunications satellites, to extend the existing service provided by Early Bird 1 are to be launched from Cape Kennedy within the next month. The first will be capable of linking Tokyo, Perth, New York and Rome by both voice and vision links, and will be followed three weeks later by Early Bird 3 which is expected to open up the possibility of adding Africa and Latin America to the network.

BONN. Britain, the United States, and West Germany have ended the first stage of their talks on Western defence needs, and the delegation leaders are to meet for further talks in Washington on November 9th. In a communique after the two days in Bonn, they are reported to have said that they are determined to maintain the strength, cohesion, and vitality of NATO. One of the subjects under discussion has been the possibility of some British and American troops being withdrawn from Germany if Germany does not fully offset the foreign exchange costs of keeping them there.

NEWS ABOUT BRITAIN.

SOUTH WALES. Disaster has struck in the little village of Aberfan, between Merthyr Tydfil and Pontypridd. A 40,000 ton heap of wet colliery waste has collapsed on the village school and nearby houses. The school was full at the time, and so far the bodies of over 100 children have been recovered but many more are still missing. All night ambulances have been churning through the muddy streets of the village, taking the bodies of the victims to the local chapel, which is being used as an emergency mortuary. Nearly 90 children escaped unhurt, and several others are in hospital, but there is little hope of finding any of the others alive unless a miracle happens. The Prime Minister, who has visited the scene, has announced that there will be a full enquiry into the accident. The Duke of Edinburgh has also visited Aberfan, and last night a message of sympathy was received from Her Majesty the Queen. Messages of condolence have also been sent by Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, The United Nations Secretary General U Thant, Pope Paul, the Prime Minister of Malta, President Banda of Malawi, and President De Gaulle. A Coal Board spokesman says the situation is still serious, as the mountain of waste may start moving again, especially if there is more rain to loosen it.

The Prime Minister is meeting leading ministers and government officials at his country residence Chequers over the weekend to review the prospects of Britain entering the European Common Market. Mr. Wilson has called the meeting to assess soundings made during the past few months by Mr. George Thompson, the minister with special responsibility for European affairs. No dramatic conclusions are expected from the meeting, which is regarded purely as a stock-taking session.

Earlier in the week Mr. Wilson agreed to meet union leaders in the car industry to discuss the position of men being put out of work as a result of the government's economic measures. The meeting was sought by the 14 unions which have been involved since the main car manufacturers began issuing redundancy notices some weeks ago.

In Birmingham, Ministry of Labour officials are to hold separate meetings with both the employers and the unions to try to end the four-week-old strike of car delivery drivers, who are protesting against dismissals. The factory has now run out of storage space for its cars, and production has been stopped.

About fifty ships are now idle in the Port of London as a result of the strike by 2,500 stevedores over the allocation of duties. The dispute is over who should load baggage onto passenger liners. The Ministry of Labour is arranging talks with the leaders of both sides.

Ford's commercial vehicle factory at Langley, Bucks, has produced its 250,000th vehicle. Despite the squeeze the factory's output has been rising, and is now over 340 vehicles per day, an increase of 25 percent over last year's figure.

Ford's have announced that they have received a repeat order from the Post Office for another 2,500 Anglia vans, worth £ $\frac{3}{4}$  million. Last August the GPO ordered nearly 1,900 vans.

The firm of AEC says it has received orders worth more than £350,000 from Africa for its new range of trucks, which have been specially designed for the export market.

MOTOR SHOW. The Motor Show has opened as glossy and enterprising as ever in spite of the government's restrictions. More than half of the models on show are British, with the new Ford Cortina, Vauxhall Viva, Hillman Hunter, and the latest luxury car, the Daimler Sovereign, which has a 4 litre 6 cylinder Jaguar engine. The car's external appearance is very similar to the new Jaguar 420, apart from having the traditional Daimler radiator. In Britain the car will cost a mere £2,000-odd.

In Northern Ireland the militant protestant clergyman the Reverend Ian Paisley has been released from Belfast prison after serving a three month sentence. Rev. Paisley, the self-styled moderator of the anti-Catholic Free Presbyterian Church of Ulster, told a crowd outside the prison " I want you all to come back tomorrow morning for a real good Protestant rally." The Northern Ireland government has banned the rally. In July 16 people were arrested outside the prison when they demanded the release of Rev. Paisley and two other Protestant militant clergymen who were jailed for holding an illegal meeting.

Tomorrow in Britain the clocks go back on to GMT for what may be the last time. The Home Secretary has been studying a suggestion by six Liberal MPs to make British Summer Time continuous throughout the year. The MPs say that reversion to GMT hampers commercial communications with the continent, and results in a loss of three hours of business time with Europe each day.

A remembrance service has been held on board HMS Victory, at Portsmouth, to mark the 161st anniversary of the battle of Trafalgar, in which Lord Nelson was killed by a French sniper. His famous signal "England expects that every man this day will do his duty" flew overhead, and wreaths were laid on the plaque marking the spot where he fell mortally wounded.

The East window of Dorchester Abbey, in Oxfordshire, has been re-dedicated to the memory of Sir Winston Churchill through funds raised in America. Members of the Churchill family, as well as the Deputy Ambassador of the United States and senior officers from air bases near Oxford attended the ceremony, which was conducted by the Bishop of Oxford.

In a message to all the country's registered dock workers, the National Organisation Committee for the docks told them that it will not be long before their jobs are secure, well paid, and permanent. The committee says it is especially pleased that the process of assigning work at the daily calls will soon be ended. Casual labour cannot be abolished for some time, in the meantime the dock industry can make a real contribution to increased national efficiency by immediately examining practices which limit their output.

A conference of officials of BOAC is being held in Manchester this week to promote the city as a major gateway to Britain for tourists. More than fifty executives from as far afield as Hawaii, Canada, Mexico and Miami are to have talks with BOAC's chairman, Sir Giles Guthrie. They will then tour the Lake District and Snowdonia to familiarise themselves with the area. The Commercial Director of BOAC has welcomed the agreement reached at the International Air Transport Association conference in Honolulu, on reduced air fares between Africa and Europe. Under the revised tariffs, he said, it will be possible for the first time to offer inclusive holidays in Africa for well under £200. This would compare favourably with the cost of similar holiday trips to India and the Caribbean.

BOAC is also considering plans for a hovercraft transport system to link its jet services to the Caribbean with the outer islands of the Bahamas. BOAC'S associated company, Bahamas Airways, would run the hovercraft service.

A family at Reading, in Berkshire, say they are being terrorised by the phantom of a grey haired old lady which is haunting their home. The housewife, Mrs. Morley, said that she had seen the apparition at least ten times since she moved there last July. Neighbours report that an elderly lady died in the house five years ago, and the local vicar has been called in to bless the house in an attempt to banish the ghost.

BAC report that they have sold 52 of the BAC 111 airliners to the American market in the past two years. The sales have been worth nearly £65 million.

A new translation of the Scriptures, to be called the Jerusalem Bible, is being published this week. It is the result of ten year's work by its general editor the Rev. Alexander Jones, of Christ College Liverpool, and twenty-one collaborators. The translators worked on Greek and Hebrew texts, and also used the French 'Bible of Jerusalem' as a guide. Each contributed two or three drafts of each book, and the best of each was taken for the final version. The new bible is intended to appeal to people of all denominations. The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Ramsey, and the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, who have seen proofs of the work, have both praised it.

Dr. Hewlett Johnson, the former Dean of Canterbury known as the 'Red Dean' has died after a fall at his Canterbury home. He was 92 years old. He was Dean for thirty-one years, and was called the Red Dean because of his support of communism. He made many visits to communist countries, the last one being China about two years ago, and in 1940 published a book in which he expressed the view that Socialism was more scientific and Christian than Capitalism.

Britain's first oil find off the North Sea coast was announced in London early in the week. A spokesman for the Burma Oil Exploration Company said that the tenth well, 15 miles off the coast, is yielding about 400 barrels per day. Further drilling will be necessary to determine whether the find is of commercial importance. The discovery of gas at the same place was announced last week.

The number of people out of work went up in the past month by just over 97,000, the highest increase for over three years. The total of 537,000 represents 1.9 percent of the working population. 1 in 7 people are either out of a job or on short time. Latest industrial production figures show a rise of 1 point for the month of August, the latest available, and the cost of living fell slightly during September.

Lord Butler, who as Lord Chancellor is Britain's principal law officer, has hit back at criticism of the legal profession. He told a meeting of the Cambridge University Labour Club that much of the criticism is ill-informed. Taking two main complaints, restrictive practices and delays by solicitors in conducting clients' business, he said many so-called restrictive practices related to the need for sufficient qualifications, and delays were unavoidable because there are simply not enough solicitors to go round. There are, he said, thirty jobs waiting for every newly qualified solicitor, and the Law Society has estimated that Britain is short of five thousand qualified men.

The Southern Gas Board has withdrawn all gas fires from its showrooms, and doesn't intend to sell any more until the winter is over. The Board is worried about gas supplies for the next few months because of delays in getting into production the two new gas works at Poole, in Dorset.

The President of the Board of Trade says that the government's Prices and Incomes Squeeze would never have been necessary if British seamen had not gone on strike during the summer. He told the British Committee of the International Chamber of Commerce that the freeze could not be maintained in its present form for more than six months. If any unjustified rises in prices occurred the government would enforce the squeeze legally as it had already done with wages. He praised the remarkable export performance of British industry, and said that this should act as a spur to effort rather than a cause for complacency.

The Medical Research Council in Edinburgh is to receive a grant of $94,000 from the Ford Foundation in New York, to finance basic research into the composition and action of the human pituitary gland. Information derived from such research is important for the development of contraceptive drugs and the determination of fertility.

The former Prime Minister of Rhodesia, Mr. Geoffrey Todd, has accepted an invitation to stand as a candidate for the rectorship of the University of Glasgow. His sponsors include the university Labour Club, and the Anti-Apartheid Society. Mr. Todd has just been released from detention on his farm in Rhodesia, and is well-known for his anti-apartheid views.

Plessey Radar Company announce that they have been awarded a design study contract for the world's first international satellite control centre. Planned by the European Space Research Organisation, it will be the hub of a world-wide network to track, control, and command ESRO scientific satellites.

A new high-power short wave radio station, providing four telephone and 82 telegraph channels, has been opened at Leighfield, in the south of England. The assistant Postmaster General said at the opening ceremony that it was probably the most advanced of its kind in the world. It can be remotely controlled by one man, and has an output capacity equal to about 10,000 words per minute.

Police forces in five southern counties have received notice from the Home Secretary that they are to be compulsorily amalgamated. This is the first time that he has used his powers of amalgamation since he told Parliament last May that he intended to reduce the number of police forces from the present 117 to 49. ~~THESE ARE THE COUNTIES CONCERNED~~ The authorities concerned are: Buckinghamshire, Berkshire, Oxfordshire, Oxford City, and Reading.

Over 300 policemen walked out of a meeting at the London branch of the Police Federation on Thursday night when the Home Secretary replied to criticisms of the Home Office attitudes on police pay and capital punishment. There were jeers, boos, and shouts of "Resign" as well as feet stamping when he referred to his recent decision not to allow the birching of prisoners convicted of violence.

On Friday, in an early morning raid on the south west London depot of the Regent Oil Company, thieves drove away three tankers loaded with petrol valued at nearly $3,000. The gang later returned one of the tankers to the depot. Empty, of course.

The oldest sea-going ship in the Royal Navy, HMS PROTECTOR, will celebrate her 50th birthday during her next voyage, which will start towards the end of this month.

AN OXFORD FIRM HAS RECEIVED AN ORDER FROM FRANCE FOR OVER 6,000 CHRISTMAS PUDDINGS WEIGHING NINE TONS.

THE FIRM NOW HOPES TO GET INTO THE NORTH AMERICAN MARKET.

STOP PRESS.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON is now in Brisbane, continuing his tour of Australia before going on to the Manila conference next week. During his visit to Sidney he was welcomed by thousands of people, but there were also struggles between police and demonstrators protesting against the war in Vietnam. Several young people forced the procession to halt by throwing themselves in front of the President's car.

HO CHI MINH, the North Vietnamese leader, has described the Manila conference as part of an American scheme to intensify the Vietnam war. he warned the Security forces in Hanoi to be on the alert for any intensification of spying activities in the north.

AMERICAN PLANES have attacked over 300 cargo barges off the North Vietnam coast. Pilots say that many of them were destroyed or damaged. South Vietnamese government troops say they killed 30 Vietcong when an army post was attacked about 350 miles north of Saigon. Government casualties were said to be light.

LAOS. The army says it has crushed the air force rebellion, and seized control of the air base used by the dissidents. It is reported that the leader of the revolt has fled to Thailand.

NIGERIA. The military Governor of East Nigeria has called for an independant enquiry, possibly by the United Nations, into events which have taken place in Nigeria since the overthrow of the civilian government last January. He says the official report promised by the new military government cannot be impartial.

CHINA. The 'Red Guards' have been told to emulate the historic 'Long March' of Mao Tse Tung and his revolutionaries in the '30s. The communist party newspaper praised some Red Guards who marched 600 miles to Peking in a month, helping with the harvest and doing odd jobs on the way.

SLEDGES : ~~XXXX~~ Since last Saturday the Kegs have come all the way from Pyramid Rocks, calling at Depot 120, and arrived at Depot 80 on Wednesday. After which Tony in Keg 5 worked with Bob and Bill for a day to finish the glacio work. Kegs 2 and 4 moved on to Flag 36 where they were joined yesterday afternoon by Dave, Mac and the Hairybrecks (Sledge GIN), and later last night by Bob, Bill and Tony in Keg 5. The Kegs and Bob are now coming across the Crossing and are expected back on base on Sunday evening - but don't forget that it is SATURDAY and Tony's quite capable of pushing on to try and finish the Gin at some very early hour to morrow morning, so don't be surprised to see them at breakfast in the morning - we WILL be surprised to see YOU though !

Dave is now waiting at flag 36 until the kegs are ready to leave base again for the Therons after which he will move south again. Sledge GEF (Gef, Mik and the Mobsters) were last night at a position 72 miles 190 degrees from 36, Sledge BAG (Alan, Col and the Beatles) were approx 20 miles South of this position where they had gone to lay a glacio rosette. Dave turned back to 36 from a point approx 55 miles from flag 36, and left part of his load here. Sledge Gef is at the moment relaying this load until they meet the Beatles (approx 80 miles from 36) wher they will establish a depot and then both return to 36 for more supplies. This week they reported slightly better going, but wasted a full day backtracking to previous camp to look for Medina who escaped last Friday. Bob reported seeing tracks in the region of Glacio stake 247 (approx. 4 miles north west of depot 80) which could have been made by Medina. Otherwise nothing seen or heard of her after she disappeared after a nighs blow. She had been following the sledges for three days after escaping before she disappeared. Suacqu (?) (Sorry Doug !) Beatles lead dog is said to be feeling rather depressed after a dog fight in which he was 'attacked' whilst taking advantage of Frostys aquiescent charms.
